Speaker:	Andrew Kurtz, LMFT, UCLA Integrated Substance Abuse Programs
Who Should Attend:	This three-hour training is free and is open to staff who are interested in learning more about cultural humility, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Psychologists • LMFTs and LCSWs • Registered Nurses • Certified Substance Use Disorder Treatment Counselors • Other Behavioral Health Specialists/Clinicians • Clinical Supervisors/Clinical Trainers are encouraged to attend
Training Description:	Substance use disorders are pervasive and chronic conditions that can impact the lives of any person regardless of ethnicity, race, culture, religious preference, sexuality, gender or any other individual or group factor. Learning how to approach each individual who asks us for help with humility and a willingness to accept those individual differences is crucial to provide effective treatment for successful outcomes. This training will help participants define cultural humility and begin to raise awareness of cultural factors that can have an impact on treatment retention and outcomes. Using the most current data and incorporating real world clinical examples, the training will demonstrate the importance of incorporating cultural humility into practice.
Educational Objectives:	At the end of the daylong training, participants will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Examine how substance use disorders (SUDs) are a chronic condition and the implication of this on collaborative treatment planning and service delivery. 2. Define cultural humility and its central importance to patient care. 3. Identify and recommend two (2) strategies and treatment approaches consistent with cultural humility and client-centered approaches to care. 4. Specify at least three (3) strategies for applying cultural humility when addressing patient behaviors that conflict with provider’s personal perspectives of recovery, morality, or preferred approaches to treatment.
